

Marco Casadei is currently Data Scientist at FLIM Labs, he is in charge of the development of algorithms for phasors segmentation and analysis. Born and raised in Romagna (Italy), he devoted himself for many years to the study of Theoretical Physics, first graduating from the University of Bologna, then moving to the Max Planck Institute in Berlin. Expert in new technologies, artificial intelligence and European grants, he is also supporting FLIM Labs in business growth activities.