

Roberto Di Chio (1990) received his M.Sc. in Industrial Chemistry in 2013 and a PhD in Engineering and Chemistry of Materials and Constructions from University of Messina in 2018. He's been devoting his attention to material preparation, characterization, and testing, for environmental and green catalysis application. Recently, he joined Professor G. Neri's team and began research in the field of electrochemical and gas sensors.