

Dr. Mariya Ivanova works as a researcher in the field of materials and membranes for energy and environmental applications at the Jülich Institute of Energy and Climate Research, Materials Synthesis and Processing. As team leader Hydrogen-permeable membranes, Dr. Ivanova is concerned with developing tight and microporous ceramic materials which act as proton conductors or molecular sieves.