

Gabriele Lingua is 3rd year PhD student at the Politecnico di Torino, Group for Applied Materials and Electrochemistry (GAME Lab). Graduated in Material Science at the University of Turin, now he is working on the development of innovative polymer-based solid-state electrolytes, chiefly single-ion conducting polymer electrolytes for the next generation of safe, high-energy Li-based batteries.