

Eng. Alan Pastorelli: Chief Technical director, co-founder of FLASH BATTERY, member of the BoD with responsibility for R&D activities and technical management. With a master's degree in electronic engineering, he is experienced in embedded hardware and firmware development, particularly for industrial and automotive applications. In FLASH BATTERY he is the main responsible for software, firmware and hardware project related to the development of the constant updates on logic and power devices. Coordinating a technical team of 15 engineers, he plans the R&D activities on batteries and electronic systems, supervises the product design and functionality development. He oversees the test planning and the validation of the technical solutions developed by the R&D team.