

I graduated in Physics at the University of Torino in 2012 and got my PhD in theoretical Physics in 2016 at the University of Southampton (UK). Since 2017 I have been a researcher at the Center for Sustainable Future Technologies of the Italian Institute of Technology (IIT) where I work on ab initio simulations of materials for CO₂ electroreduction and green applications.